Re: Buesing Corp Testimonial

Dear Kevin,

It is with great pleasure that I write to you and offer testimony regarding Buesing Corporation and our appreciation for the services your organization has provided to Alliance Residential Builders.

As an owner/builder of projects that include $30M - $40M of construction hard costs, the cost of capital on a project this size can be very significant and therefore imperative that we team up with an organization that can meet project objectives and deliverables. In Buesing, we find that they consistently bring the most cost effective, safe and strategic methods of construction to our projects.

Buesing is recognized as an organization that employs talented and technically competent construction professionals who are focused on meeting the customer needs. Further, the organization possesses tremendous equipment resources capable of taking on the most diverse and technically challenging projects. Yet, the defining characteristic of their organization is the people who work there. Each person I have encountered at Buesing has been nothing but professional, courteous and earnestly tried to provide resolution to whatever issues or questions we have, whether it is during the design stage, the construction stage or during budgeting efforts. This professional attitude and high level of technical knowledge sets them apart from their competitors and has earned the trust of our project teams.

Being a developer of multifamily projects, the strength of our construction knowledge is largely related to vertical construction, so it's important that we team up with sitework construction experts to ensure we engage in the most efficient plan for our projects. The fact that Buesing has a wide range of earthwork capabilities specifically related to foundation or basement excavation, drilling and even permanent shoring solutions such as wall-line concrete, means Alliance feels confident that contracting with Buesing will result in a successful project outcome.

Within the Southwest regional office of Alliance Residential, Buesing has the reputation of being the premier civil/ sitework contractors in our market. Buesing Corp's innovative capabilities combined with state of the art equipment resources and highly trained field personnel has been an asset to Alliance and the projects Buesing has been a part of. Their level of performance has led to a great deal of trust in Buesing from our onsite personnel to our management team and has left us eager to continue working with them on future projects.

Respectfully,
